Thinking Out Loud

(By H. M. L.)

Ardent supporters of the New Deal sometimes seem slightly miffed when any criticism is leveled at the various alphabetical activities in which the New Deal manifests itself. They declare it rank ingratitude when such criticism, or outright complaint is leveled at the WPA system and methods locally. It is equivalent, they say, to looking a gift horse in the mouth.

Righ there we disagree. What this community, and every other community in the nation is doing, is buying various improvements for the community at a high price with carrying charges that make the price still higher. In years to come we shall be paying for them in installments. These installments will be paid directly and indirectly in our taxes. We have every right therefore to complain if at any time we feel that we are not getting our money's worth. CWA, SERA, and WPA projects were and are not gifts. Our children will be paying for them while we repose quietly with our toes to the daisies.

Republicans, Old Guards and the younger ones, who are yelling that the four billion dollars voted for relief, is equivalent to a huge Democratic campaign fund, should save their breath. That four billion is the heaviest mill stone that was ever hung upon a political party's neck. If Roosevelt's administration survives this year's testing, it will be for other reasons than the expenditure of a sum so vast.

What the people of this country are now clamoring for, whenever they become articulate, is relief from the burden of relief. The thing grows upon its own fodder, that is the need of relief increases apparently with the means of relief. It is going to be a rigorous process, but eventually a relief shift must come. States, counties and cities must resume the burden of relief. When that time comes we shall find relief needs suddenly diminished. It's home folks that know whether their neighbor needs relief work or a plain dole, and once the job of deciding that question is put up to them, the home folks will know what to do.

Uncle Cy Hopper ses: "Thisere rocket the papers made sech a fuss abaout, recollecs tew me, the greenbackers, the dew nuthins, Coxy's airmy, the mugwumps an the bull Moos. An agin it calls tew mind the Townsendites an the newdists an the Epics. Thisere rocket arter all the fuss and hullabaloo riz ten fut in the air and fizzled."

California is in vanguard of the states that are staging "come backs." The U. S. Department of Commerce says the Golden State leads because of the great diversification of its products: in fish, from sardines to whales, in fowls from canaries to turkeys, in flesh, from piglets to ponderous white faced bulls, and in the realm of fruits from avacados to gorgeous apples. In mineral output we range from petroleum through the whole gamut of copper, to gold. Our Native Sons are natives of the Golden West. It is the ultimate west where all the good things of life abound, and where, were it not for the constant inflow of the indigent from other states, poverty would soon be abolished.

When Hitler banned Charlie Chaplin's play "Modern Times" from Germany he alleged it was because the play betrayed a trend toward communism. A pert Paris paper declares that the ban was laid because Charlie's little false moustache was a dead ringer for Hitler's real one. Hitler dreads being comic or contributing to comedy and Chaplin dreads being anything else.

BANNER MT. POST WILL INITIATE TEN

Ten or more candidates will take the obligation of the order of Banner Mt. Post, V. F. W., when National Commander James Van Zandt broadcasts the initiatory work from Washington, D. C. at 8:30 Tuesday evening, March 2.

The meeting will be held in the Elks hall, Nevada City. Judge Geo. L. Jones has been secured as speaker of the evening. Mr. Earl Raymond post adjutant, and Mrs. Raymond, the latter a talented musician, have arranged a splendid musical program.

TO REGISTER VOTERS

Mrs. Mae Carr has been appointed a deputy county clerk to register voters in Nevada City.

SOUND LUMBER WENT INTO OLD CITY HALL

In wrecking the old city hall, which was built in 1878, sixty-eight years ago, Douglas fir girders exposed in the foundation on Wednesday were found to be as good as the day they were put in the building. The lumber may have been cut in Northern California or southern Oregon in early days where this fir grows and is known as Oregon fir. The lumber is absolutely clear, without knotholes, and is said to be better than the first grade lumber of today. Superintendent John C. Schreck stated the lumber will be used again in the new city hall.

FOREIGN TRADE BALANCE OF U. S. TAKES BIG DROP

(By RALPH H. TAYLOR)

The favorable trade balance of the United States is now the lowest since 1911. More than that, it is 50 per cent below the 1934 balance!

And looking at the facts squarely without recourse to "wishful thinking," there is little likelihood of any material improvement in America's export trade for some time to come.

No less an authority than Chester Davis, director of the AAA, declares that European countries, due to economic stringency, war threat and war, are bending every effort toward becoming self-sustaining. He adds that in light of these conditions the United States can not look forward to any immediate improvement in her foreign markets.

Actuated by the immutable law of self-preservation, the problem appears to have resolved itself on a basis of "Every Nation for itself."

Canada, for example, is concentrating as far as possible on Canadian products. England continues, to the utmost of her ability, to "Buy British." Germany favors products of the Fatherland with a drastic ruling that imports can be paid for only in German goods—a severe blow to the California prune industry. Italy, apprehensive of a new European war and blockade of her seaports, is determined to be "sufficient unto herself" at all costs. And France keeps pace with the others, speeding up production of her agricultural plant and her other industries.

Nor is there the slightest basis of truth in the oft-repeated statement that other nations have adopted their high tariffs in retaliation against increased tariffs established by the United States. As a matter of fact, most of the European nations raised their tariff barriers first and then cried "we shall have to retaliate"—hoping, thereby, to prevent the United States from doing likewise.

In the great game of international diplomacy, the United States has been constantly out-bid and outbluffed.

What, then, of American agriculture under these conditions?

The National Cooperative Council, comprised of the country's leading farm cooperatives, has enunciated the only sound and sane policy to meet such an emergency in its declaration that "the American market for agricultural products should be given first to American agriculture."

Such a policy should be adopted without any thought of reprisal. California farmers, particularly, have benefited by a heavy export trade in times past and every effort should be made to retain the foreign trade which still exists.

On the other hand, it is absolutely imperative that tariff protection be used at the present time to equalize the difference in production costs at home and abroad—and to prevent foreign products from under-selling American products right in our own American market.

American agriculture does not ask tariff barriers which would prohibit the importation of foreign commodities, nor does it seek a tariff which would force prices above reasonable, competitive levels, representing American standards of living.

It has a right, however, to expect protection against being undersold in its own market—and against the break down of American wage standards.

Sound economics, rather than any spirit of reprisal, should be the governing factor in the country's trade policies.

And sound economics certainly should dictate an even break for home products in home markets.

WRITE PLATFORM, STICK TO IT, IS G. O. P. PROMISE

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—Republicans east of the Mississippi river are not only optimistic regarding the outcome of the 1936 presidential election, but are confident that the Republican party will sweep the country, declared Mrs. Hazel Pedlar Faulkner, Executive Director of the Women's Division of the Republican State Central Committee, on her return here today from a month's tour of eastern states.

Mrs. Faulkner said:

"The leaders of the Republican party, such as Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican National Committee, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, Congressman Frank Carlson of Kansas, and scores of others are gratified over the definite disappearance of what they termed the 'defeatist attitude' which followed the national elections of four years and two years ago and the evident confidence in a forthcoming Republican victory, which has replaced that attitude definitely.

"Senator Vandenberg stressed the importance in this campaign of the platform which the Republican party must write in Cleveland. Recalling the fact that many Republicans shared the belief of the Democrats in their platform of 1932 he expressed his conviction that the most important task which confronts the Republican party today is writing a sound platform whose planks will be adhered to definitely after election and not repudiated as have those of the Democratic platform of 1932.

"Representing as he does an Agricultural state, Senator Capper, the Senior Senator from Kansas, pointed to the necessity on the part of the Republicans for a satisfactory agricultural plank in their platform. Because of financial relief which came to the middle west as the result of the former AAA policy Senator Capper recognizes the mandate to the Republican platform committee to find a reasonable substitute for the former. Like Vandenberg he expressed confidence in the party's ability to meet the problem adequately.

"Party leaders east and west recognize that this election more than any previous one will be determined largely by the women of the country. This time more than in any previous campaign are voters confronted with plain issues which effect them very directly. There are more things for women to be concerned about in determining which party shall be given responsibility in these critical times, than has been the case since national suffrage has been granted. Throughout the country, east and west, as never before, women are realizing this and are making intelligent effort not only to inform themselves but to get out each voter who should be recorded."

POLICE FORCE LOCK TO SALVAGE CLOCK

It took one officer to put it on—three to take it off! That lock on the door of the former Nevada City Tavern on Broad street.

About three months ago Constable William Jeffry padlocked the doors because the place had been attached.

Until Wednesday it still housed an electric clock, the property of The Postal Telegraph company. That was a very important clock so Superintendent Glick of San Francisco came up here to get it.

With an array of officers, Chief Robson, Constale Jeffry and Judge Mobley, he went forth to rescue the Postal Telegraph clock. In dignified file they approached the door lock, they attacked the ensemble, it didn't budge. A crowd gathered, offered advice and cheers. A hack-saw was applied. Chief Robson applied the power, the lock was adamant, William Jeffry tried his hand and technique, the lock remained firmly on the door, then Judge Mobley gave aid judiciously, but the lock didn't budge.

Then they all tried together, Superintendent Glick helping push the hack-saw this time. The lock gave way, Superintendent Glick carried the clock away before the admiring crowd.

The story of the fray with pictures of officers will appear in the Postal Telegraph News published in New York. Pictures have been promised to the local officers.

BIDS SOUGHT ON GRAMMAR SCHOOL BLDG.

In this issue of the Nevada City Nugget a notice to contractors appears inviting bids on a new grammar school for Nevada City. The bids will be opened Friday, March 13. The new structure, as the plans drafted show, will be a modern plant in many respects much more economical from the standpoint of heating and lighting than the old building most of which was erected in 1868.

TWO THUGS WANTED HERE RESIST EXTRADITION

Andrew Hooper and Cecil Kaedle, two thugs who slugged and robbed Deputy Sheriff Theodore Tobiassen in the Gold Nugget Inn some months ago, arrested recently in Wallace, Idaho, and jailed awaiting extradition, are fighting extradition. They have hired an attorney and before they can be extradited local officers will have to appear at a hearing before the governor in Boise City. This was the advice received by wire yesterday by Sheriff Carl Tobiassen.

CLUB WOMEN MEET

A large delegation of Nevada City Civic Club women attended the Tri-County convention in Roseville on Thursday. The meeting proved most instructive and a dainty luncheon was enjoyed. Representatives from the three counties were present. Many interesting speakers were heard and good reports given from each club.

Mr. Alfred Kelly, business man of Tonopah, Nev., came to Nevada City Wednesday to attend the funeral of his late friend, Ernest Cole. Mr. Kelly was born in Pensilva, Cornwall, England and left there when a young man. It was quite a pleasant surprise to meet a former friend in Constable William Jeffrey of this city, whom he had not seen since Mr. Jeffrey left England as a young man in 1890.

Wild Life Census of Tahoe Reveals Wolves Many Deer and Bear

Last November a deer census was started in the Tahoe National forest under the supervision of Mr. Leland Smith, grazing inspector, with several CCC boys as assistants.

Thirty different areas of the west side forests have been surveyed as to where deer winter, condition of areas after winter rains, normal conditions, or residence and migration of deer. A survey or check of this territory will be made next year. Due to an open winter the deer were able to stay in the mountains this winter.

On the east side of the Tahoe National forest ranges the survey while not completed, shows definitely where the deer stay and range. One large area was found to be with out deer, while several others were densely populated. Mr. Smith said he had found deer in places almost starving while good forage was only a mile away, establishing the fact that the animals have a definite home and limited range.

The food the deer browse on consists of wild cherry, willow, chapparral and snow brush. Manzanita is eaten only as last resort.

The work has progressed so far that all that is needed is a type map to check species, habits, etc., which will require much work before being completed.

Mr. Leland Smith accompanied by Forest Ranger Pete Land made a trip into the eastern part of Nevada county last week to recheck part of their work. They found the movement of deer quite decided, there being more in some areas than a month ago. This work is not final and surveys will continue. Mr. Smith stated he feels certain there are many less deer in the mountains than prior to 1933. Much of this is due to wild animals, but it is known beyond a doubt there is a very large illegal kill by poachers.

While the national forests have taken up this work recently Mr. Smith has followed it for many years He stated that in areas where 15 to 20 deer were found in the past, there are none now.

Many black and brown bear are known to live in the Webber Lake and French Meadows country. It has been estimated several thousand coyotes are in the back country also. A few mountain lions are in the national preserve. Mr. Smith stated it had been established that there were two lions in the Camptonville district; two in the Sierraville area; possibly three or four in the Forest Hill country, and an old lion and two yearlings in the Steep Hollow district east of Nevada City. The lions destroy many of the helpless deer during a year.

For the first time in many years five timber wolves are ranging on Mt. Rose, Nevada in the eastern part of the Tahoe National forest. These are the first wolves Mr. Smith has seen since coming to the local preserve in 1925. The wolves, dark, iron gray in color and with much heavier shoulders and jaws than coyotes, are following the deer. A trapper saw one wolf on Mt. Rose and a few days ago Mr. Smith saw a wolf chasing a deer about 200 yards from him, in the Truckee district. These creatures will not attack humans unless in bands, cornered or hungry.

The heaviest snow pack for many years lies in the Sierra Nevadas. Mr. Smith found one and a half to two feet of snow in the Sierra Valley, three to four feet in the mountains. The storm Sunday and Monday almost doubled the season's snow fall there being nine feet of snow at Cisco Wednesday morning, and 18 feet at Donner Summit.

NEW LEDGE IS DISCOVERED IN GREAT NORTHERN

It has been rumored around on the streets for the past week or two that the Great Northern Gold Mines Inc., have made an important new discovery in their developments and it is understood from Arthur M. Hoge, who is in charge of the operations at the mine, that while the ledge has so far not been opened up to any great extent that it is, apparently, an important discovery as the values average better than $40 per ton and the ledge has all the characteristics of being of the same character of rock that has been typical of what has been taken out heretofore at what is generally known as the Hoge mine. These values have been higher than the general average.

This new ledge, according to reports and as near as can be determined at this time, is apparently, a north and south ledge that closely parallels the contact and is something that has not been developed or opened up heretofore.

The management as well as the leasers, are very optimistic over the discovery of this new ledge, the character of the ore and the values, and they all feel that it is going to be the means of developing a considerably increased production as soon as it can be opened up and developed.

Men can act in unison for a common cause—and speedily, too, when lives are at stake in an emergency.

A threat of wholesale epidemic of deadly spinal meningitis aboard the California State Nautical School's training ship last week caused consternation in numerous California homes.

In all, 70 cadets were on board, most of them from various cities in this state. One youth died of the disease, and a second was stricken, although not seriously. Swiftly the menace was brought under control, but only after several men in scattered points had acted quickly and decisively.

When the second case developed, the ship's commander sent out an SOS for medical aid. Immediately from Balboa, in the Canal Zone, the destroyer Tattnall began a race to the rescue, carrying physicians, serum and medical equipment. Before the Tattnall arrived, however, a passenger liner had gone out of its way to transfer a small amount of serum and medical attendant to the cadet ship.

Not long after the destroyer arrived, the cadet ship's commander radioed: "No further danger."

The unexpected suddenness of the outbreak of epidemic is reflected in messages radioed from the ship. First was, "Cadet Willard Moore developed apparent case spinal meningitis, best course proceed canal to obtain earliest hospitalization;" then, "Cadet Moore condition very serious," then on the same day, "Cadet Moore died at noon without suffering, notify parents;" and then, "Second case meningitis developing, have requested help from navy, Panama."

Always, in emergencies, men act rapidly and together. If only they could act in the same manner when the pressure is not so great.

A Plea to Uncle Sam

Gradually, the business of providing relief for the unemployed in California is working toward a crisis that we can no longer pretend to ignore.

Last week Frank Y. McLaughlin, State Director of WPA got a wire from Washington saying our quota could not exceed 150,000 men, when already we have 154,000 on works relief and had hoped to transfer 30,000 more from direct relief, which is becoming too big a load for the SERA to carry

Later, press dispatches from Washington indicated there would be no paring down of WPA, but nevertheless the quota still remains uncomfortably small. With luck and a continued increase in private employment, however, we may get around this WPA trouble.

Also we may survive the unhealthy situation of having no state appropriations for relief during the last half of the present biennium, by continuing to finance it with state warrants, or I. O. U's.

But there is a third difficulty which will take more than luck to surmount. The Federal government has curtailed transient relief in California, and already it is reflected in increased panhandling, in the recrudescence of hobo jungles, and in the possibility that cities and counties will again have to open up flop houses and soup kitchens.

Now whatever may be said about returning much of the relief problem to municipalities and private charities, provision for transient unemployed will always remain a Federal responsibility, since these wander from place to place and are citizens of no particular state.

California cannot fairly be asked to provide for its overabundance of transients. We have more than the combined total of 20 other states, and nearly 12 per cent of the entire national load.

This is one situation we cannot muddle through. We shall have to make ourselves heard in Washington, to convince the Federal government that the transient problem is rightfully its responsibility.

Crime and Punishment

(Contributed)

And now it appears that not only does the public need protection from the criminal, but that also the criminal, after he lands in San Quentin, needs protection from the public.

Perhaps it is not fair to call racketeering elements part of the "public," but nevertheless they are still at large, and they have been preying on the felons.

Knowing many of these would get bonus money, the racketeers have tried to reach the prisoners in the pose of self-respecting lawyers, with a promise that, for enough money, they would secure the prisoner's parole.

State Prison Board Director A. R. O'Brien lamented at long length on this situation the other day, and most emphatically declared that the board would find a way to remedy it. Unquestionably it ought to be remedied.

But the principal problem of society would seem still to be the protection against, rather than of, the criminal. And Congress has taken a step in this direction that deserves a good word. It has begun passage of a bill designed to control interstate shipment of firearms, with the object of making it hard for the criminal to get hold of a gun.

The present controversy over the British subject condemned to hang at San Quentin for his part in the prison break in which the parole board was kidnapped, is an interesting commentary upon guns and their availability.

Though the British government is protesting MacKay's execution, certainly in England where guns are absolutely not available, he would not have had the weapon he used in the abortive escape. And too, in England where justice is notably swift, he most likely would have been executed long before this.

Incidentally, it is unfortunate that Britain protested, since in this case at least the United States, and California, seemed to be getting along all right without need of suggestions from abroad.

Mrs. Edward Rose of the Rose Fashion Shoppe motored to Lodi Sunday night to see her mother who was seriously ill. Mrs. Rose returned in a heavy down pour Sunday night, her mother having shown some improvement in her heart trouble, before she left Lodi. Mrs. Rose thought that the arrival of her brother, Zoral Coberly, at the bedside of his mother was a great help in his mothers improvement. Mr. Coberly drove Mrs. Rose back to Nevada City Sunday night, and she had not seen him for twelve years. Mr. Coberly has been a missionary in China for the past eight years. Though the drive up from the valley was through a heavy storm, Mrs. Rose counts it one of the most pleasant she ever had.

STATE PIONEERS OF EDUCATION

(By ROY W. CLOUD)
State Executive Secretary
California Teachers Association

Editor's Note: California's public school system is regarded as one of the two outstanding system of the United States, New York State alone challenging comparison. This series of ten articles is intended to familiarize friends of the schools and the public generally with outstanding pioneers who have contributed to the development, since 1849, of California's pre-eminent public school system.

MARK KEPPEL

Mark Keppel, born April 11, 1867 one of the greatest native-born educators California has produced, was a member of a family of 16 children The father and mother made a living for their boys and girls on a farm in northern California and reared them as simple, God-fearing people should be raised. There were no luxuries. Hard work was the lot of each.

The lad, who was to become an outstanding schoolman, went through the little country school near his home. Then came an opportunity to work his way through San Joaquin College, a school fostered by the United Brethren Church, to which Mark belonged.

After graduating from college, he took the county examination and was certified to teach. A country school was obtained and here for a year Mark Keppel taught the boys and girls. At the end of this year he decided that a wider field of usefulness was in store for him. Accordingly he resigned and going south was appointed to a position in Los Angeles county.

His work in his new school was so successful that an opening was made for him in the Los Angeles city schools. He soon became principal. By 1902 he was so well known that he was elected superintendent of schools of Los Angeles county. He occupied this office until his death in 1928, a period of 26 years.

Mark Keppel was a truly great man because he was a child-like follower of the great teacher of Nazareth. He never swerved from what he believed to be right. He laid down rules for Los Angeles county which became known throughout the state and nation.

He was a clear thinker and could see a thing through to the end before most people had even visioned the idea involved. His mind was logical; he was called upon to frame much of the school legislation which had been enacted during the last twenty years of his life.

He began and carried through to a successful completion Amendment No. 16 to the Constitution. This created both a constiutional guaranty and constitutional fixed charges for public education. The major portion of the funds so guaranteed were to be paid by the state. This Amendment set up California's first equalization law for public education. Mr. Keppel constantly advocated that school money should be raised where wealth exists and spent in any community in which there were children of school age. Prior to the passage of this amendment, most of the funds for public education were raised by local taxes. Where assessments were small, the children had poorly equipped schools. In cities where great wealth abounded, children had the best educational opportunities. Mr. Keppel's one idea was to give the country children as good an education as could be secured in any city school.

Mark Keppel was of the common people. The people's problems were his, for he loved the boys and girls of the public schools of California.

He was, for many years, president of California Teachers Association.

After a brief illness, Mark Keppel passed to his reward on June 16, 1928, in his beloved city of Los Angeles. It could well be said of him that he was a great leader, a great lawgiver, a great educator.

INQUEST HELD

At an inquest conducted by Cooner Roy S. Duggins of Shasta county held Thursday, February 20 into the cause of the death of John F. Buckley, aged 64. of Redding, death was found due to suicide.

His son Delmar Buckley said his father had been despondent for months, due to ill health and grief over the death of a son who was killed in an automobile accident about six months ago.

Mr. Buckley was a former resident of North Bloomfield and is survived by his wife and two sons.

Mr. Will Fouyer, who has been critically ill for several months, is making rapid recovery and it will be good news to his many friends to learn that he expects to be out in the sunshine in a short time.

JUDGE TUTTLE SUSTAINS JUSTICE COURT AWARD

Judgment granted by Justice of the Peace Morehouse, of Grass Valley in the suit brought by the Signal Gas and Oil Co., against W. R. Peck and J. C. Chambliss, brought before Judge Raglan Tuttle Wednesday on appeal, was confirmed Wednesday. Judgment was for $178.83. W. A. Casseteri appeared for the plaintiff and Jones and Finnegan represented the defendants.

In the case of Herbert Bergen vs. W. E. Soden, the motion of the defendant to set aside two services of summons, was denied as regards one summons by Judge Tuttle. One summons was served by publication and the other by person. The service by publication was found faulty by the court, but the service by person was declared valid. Jones and Finnegan represented the plaintiff.

CAUGHT IN SNOW BLOCKADE

Leland S. Smith, in charge of grazing contracts of the National Forest service, and Forest Ranger F. A. Land, were caught in the snow Monday between the summit and Truckee and because of a blockaded snow plough were obliged, with several other occupants of autos, to spend the night by the roadside along by Donner lake. Tuesday morning a second snow plow cut through and they were enabled to reach Nevada City.

Mr. W. E. Moulton of French Corral was a Nevada City visitor Wednesday. He is installing a large refrigeration plant in his meat market at North San Juan which will be in operation in a few days.

Pinchot Appeals For Washington Clean-up

(By GIFFORD PINCHOT)

Washington is a long way from most of you who read this. And while you hear a great deal about the actions of Congress, and the big speeches of big men who are in office or who would like to be in office, you don't hear so much about how the wheels of government are grinding. It isn't easy for you to find out whether they are grinding smoothly, or whether or not you are getting a dollar's worth of service from your government for every dollar tax you pay.

In the past the American people haven't cared so very much about whether the government at Washington was producing a dollar's worth of service for every dollar spent, or the worth of a lead nickel or a thin dime.

If you could show that a public servant had stolen a thousand dollars, you got all the public attention you wanted. But if you showed that a public servant had wasted a million dollars, that left the American people cold. They were too busy with their own affairs to get excited over a little thing like that.

They didn't seem to realize that it was their million that was wasted. They didn't realize that it came out of their pockets, and that it was their work that didn't get done because of the waste. So they just didn't care.

HAPPY DAYS OF YORE

Them was the happy days, if you like, when the average man could afford to be careless about what became of his taxes. He didn't feel the pinch, then.

But it's different today. Today, for the first time in my experience, people are really taking an interest in how their affairs—their government affairs—are managed. They and you are getting convinced that whether or not your government gives you a dollar's worth of service for every dollar spent makes a difference—a difference that you can feel.

When Theodore Roosevelt was in Washington, the government of the United States ran like a well oiled machine—like an automobile in its first ten thousand miles. It was Model 1910, up to the minute, full of pep, and it gave the biggest mileage ever known for every gallon that went into the tank.

Every public servant knew just where he was headed and just what he was expected to do. And if he couldn't do it, or wouldn't do it, somebody that could and would deliver the goods was put in his place.

Today, when Franklin D. Roosevelt is at the head of the government every nut is loose (and that goes double), every joint squeaks, the steering wheel is out of kilter, the brakes are on the bum, the front wheels are wobbly, the whole machine rattles like a truckload of milk cans, and the mileage per dollar is simply disgraceful.

PAYING FOR A MESS

Because the man in charge is a poor mechanic, the government at Washington is a mess. And that fact makes a difference to you.

Why? Because you and I and the rest of us have to pay for the mess. We have to put up too much money—more money than it ought to take—to make the wheels go around.

And another reason: There was a time when the Federal government didn't have so much to do with all of us, and very much less with each of us. But that time has gone by.

Today the Federal government is in your kitchen raising the cost of food, in your closet boosting the cost of clothes, in your factory, in your field, in your business. You can't get away from it, day or night.

With every cent you spend, you help to pay for the government in Washington. If you go to a movie, if you travel on a bus or a train, if you post a letter or call up a friend, if you do anything that costs a cent or a million, from the time you get up in the morning till you go to bed at night, you pay. The tax is there, whether you see it or not.

Every government undertaking, good or bad, wise or unwise, costs you money. The bonus for the soldiers, whether you are for it or against it; old age pensions, whether you believe in them or not; relief for the unemployed, which must be given, whether you like it or whether you don't; and a thousand other government matters which concern you in one way or another—every last one of them comes straight back to you and your pocket book.

WHERE'S 25% REDUCTION?

Instead of the twenty five per cent reduction which was promised you, the Federal departments cost more than ever. The financial policy of the government is about as stable as a feather in a gale. And that makes a difference to you. For how can business men plan for the future when they can't tell what's ahead? And how can you have prosperity again unless business is prosperous?

The government at Washington is no longer the smooth-running engine of your service for which you pay and to which you have a right. The government at Washington is a mess. And no wonder.

Instead of practical men who know their way around, young men with plenty of theory and no practice are put in charge of important public enterprises where experience counts far more than book learning. No business man would put such tenderfeet in charge of anything.

The result is that every day in every way the cost of government keeps going up—and that makes a difference to you.

I don't know how you feel about it, but I have a definite opinion as to spending your money and mine to send fan dancers to CCC camps. I have a definite opinion about boondoggling, and about the loafing on public works that so many of us have noticed.

I don't so much blame the men who do the loafing. Men who won't loaf when they get the chance are not exactly rare. But I do blame the directing heads who dribble your money away for lack of practical capacity, or a practical plan.

Instead of one clear plan Washington has a sort of blizzard of plans. The air of Washington is cloudy with commissions, each buzzing in its own vacuum. You pay for every one.

HOUSING FIASCO

It would take all your fingers and toes to count the organizations which are dealing with the one subject of housing. You pay for every one. And get practically no housing in return.

The protection or destruction of wild life is scattered among many government organizations. So is the conservation of our government grazing lands. And so on, and so on.

Home loans are a mess. Relief is a mess. Work relief is worse—it is a political mess. Men are refused work relief unless they will change their politics from Republican to Democratic. Relief workers are assessed for political contributions. Other relief workers are voted at elections in blocks by their foreman.

In my state of Pennsylvania the cheapest type of political heeler is put in charge of the vast enterprise of work relief, Notorious waste of money, failure to furnish employment, and a general mess are the natural result.

And it does make a difference to you whether you get a dollar's worth of service for every dollar spent for all these activities of the Federal government or whether you have to put two dollars into the government to get one hundred cents in return.

Great policies are adopted without sufficient thought and thrown aside without sufficient reason. Great enterprises which might result in great benefit to the people are taken up with a hurrah, then dropped like hot potatoes. Millions upon millions of dollars have been spent on plans that were never carried out.

ORGANIZATIONS FIGHTING

Organizations after organizations then more organizations are created turned loose, and left to spend their energy and your money fighting each other instead of working together intelligently in your interest.

The work of the government is badly organized. Your business in Washington is in charge of ten cabinet officers, each the head of a great department, such as the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, the Department of Labor and the Post Office Department. All these the President must watch over and keep track of. That by itself is a tremendous job.

But that is only the beginning. The New Deal has created so many ney organizations, that in iddition to the ten regular departments the President has 42 independent corporations, boards, authorities, administrations, commissions, banks, and institutions to look after, or, with the departments, 52 in all.

Fifty two great organizations to be kept in the strait and narrow path by one man—by the man who as an executive is a wonderful radio speaker. It can't be done. It was poor judgment to try it. The man doesn't live who could swing it. There ain't no such animal. And that is one great reason for the mess at Washington.

What Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Shaw Comes Through

HOUSTON, TEXAS.—I always said there was only one living person who could convince me that George Bernard Shaw was not the smartest man in the world—and that person would be George Bernard Shaw.

And, by gum, he did it! For this admirer he began the disillusioning job the last time he was over here, telling us so frankly what ailed us, and on the present trip he already has finished up the contract. When a man, no matter how great he was in the past, reaches the point where he mistakes rudeness to his hosts for proof of his own brilliancy, instead of just bad manners—well, to me one of the most distressing sights on this earth is that of an extinct crater still trying to be the flaming volcano it once was.

Irvin S. Cobb

Only for Westerners

WHAT, I ask you, is the use of being a consistent old line Republican back East, with fine banking connections, when all you're permitted to do, as the other fellows start drawing their hands for this year's big game, is to fuss with the discards?

Why, lots of us can remember when it wasn't regarded as fatal to the Presidential prospect of a bright member of the G. O. P. younger set if he happened to reside on the Wall Street side of the Allegheny mountains. In fact, quite the contrary.

Now it seems there's a rule that only westerners may look longingly toward the White House without being accused of trying to peep in the deck before the deal.

So-Called "Sunny South"

IF THE poetic pioneers who first christened the lower cross section of our country the Sunny South came hither at this season of the year, I think I know what actuated them.

They called Dixie the Sunny South for the same reason that naturalists have named a certain type of African hyena the laughing hyena—not because the creature laughs so often, but because he laughs so seldom that it naturally attracts attention.

After contemplating lowering or leaking skies for a straight ten days, I'm beginning to wonder whether the sun has retired from business permanently. Probably about next July I'll wish he had.

Valuable Advice

TODAY I ran into my old and wise friend, Bassett Blakely. He stuck to the cow business whereas Will Rogers was weaned from it. Otherwise, these southwesterly ranges might have produced one more corn-fed philosopher-humorist with a national reputation.

During the depression, Bassett tried to borrow a sizable sum from a gentleman with a well-earned reputation for frugality. It was a forlorn hope.

"No," stated Bassett, emerging from the interview, "he didn't let me have any money, but on parting he gave me free of charge some beautiful advice. Bassett, my son, he said, never feed your stock dry fodder in windy weather. I did that in March of 1884 and one shuck blew away on me."

Long's Machine Endures

LAKE CHARLES, LA.—I mean no disrespect for any man's memory, but for most anyone of us who ever tasted success the verse that was written about little dog Rover might serve as an epitaph: "While he lived, he lived in clover, but when he died, he died all over."

I would have said that Huey Long's machine, being essentially a one-man machine, would start falling to pieces before ever they buried him. But it yet endures and is powerful and, right or wrong, it functions. People here still believe in his policies, still perpetuate his organization, still endorse his designs. Most dictators sip the bitter cup of defeat while they live. Here is one who from the tomb looms almost as tall as he did when he walked in the flesh.

Admire such a man's record or despise it, nevertheless you have to take off your hat to a personality that can project itself back across the grave.

They're All Ranches

OUT in California, every patch of ground where things grow, regardless of size, is a ranch. So far as I know there are only two farms in southern California; one's a lion farm and the other is an ostrich farm. I look for the day when a Hollywood scalp specialist will refer to his establishment as a dandruff ranch.

In Texas, which we just left behind us, nearly everybody is a rancher, too, or used to be. Today we're in the land of the planters, and if we kept going, bearing north, tomorrow we'd be among the farmers.

The so-called gentleman-farmer, as we know him back east, doesn't flourish anywhere down here. There are show places aplenty along this Louisiana coast, but they weren't built for show places—they were built for homes.

Keep Trying

Oh, I can't do this and I can't do that,
My weary heart was crying,
The task is hard and the way is dark,
So what is the use of trying?

But a new day smiled through the mists of dawn
And kindled my hope anew,
And a robin sang from a meadow near,
"There is nothing you cannot do!"

"Think of my task," said the dragon fly
On her gossamer wings of blue,
"I came from the depths of a slimy pool—
There is nothing you cannot do."

Then a creeping worm by the garden wall,
With its patience rebuked my sighing;
"I go," it said, "on my lowly way,
But soon I'll be flying—flying!"

The roses whispered the message true
From their glowing hearts of gold,
It was carried on by the perfumed breeze
And unto the wide world told.

The sun and the moon and the morning stars
Sang the wonderful theme anew;
And my heart recaptured the glad refrain,
"There is nothing you cannot do!"

Oh I can do this and I can do that,
And hope to my heart came flying,
The task is hard and the way is dark,
But I'll win if I just keep trying.

JIM FARLEY

Then there's another great reason. And the name of that reason is Jim Farley.

Farley has filled Washington with Democrats who know nothing about government, who care nothing about government, whose sole interest is to get as much money and do as little work as they can, while the Democratic candle holds out to burn. And while it burns, it is burning up the dollars—your dollars—at a rate that neither you nor I nor any living American ever saw equalled before.

Washington is crowded with Democrats who have no fitness to hold their jobs except that they are Democrats. In the last fiscal year not one in ten of new employees was required to prove his ability under the Civil Service law.

Franklan Roosevelt has reduced the number of tested public servants from eighty per cent to sixty per cent. Every other President from T. R. to Hoover has raised it. A hundred thousand new government employees were appointed in six months nearly all of them on a Farley spoils basis.

Thanks to the Farley idea of politics first and good business lost in the dust behind it, the Federal government has cost you and me and all the rest of us, under this administration, hundreds if not thousands of millions of dollars more than it ought to cost. And that makes a difference to you.

SOME GOOD IN IT ALL

But in spite of all that, it would be foolish to conclude that in everything the government is doing it is headed the wrong way. I am far from saying that everything that is going on in Washington is wrong. Mere abuse is cheap, and seldom gets you anywhere.

Some of the things that Franklin Roosevelt has done are wrong, in my opinion. And some of them are right. But right or wrong, all the things that Franklin Roosevelt is doing are costing you too much money. And that makes a difference to you.

Personally Franklin Roosevelt is a gentleman and a scholar, and a very able politician. And as an individual I like him very much. But as the manager of the greatest business on earth—the government of the United States—I don't like him at all.

As a radio speaker he is a wonder. As a business executive he is a flop. A flop in handling your business, and that makes a difference to you.

I am not for destroying everything that Roosevelt has done. I am for saving the good and discarding the bad. But the good is less good and the bad is worse because of the mess in Washington.

I have known and worked with the Federal government intimately for a generation, and I know something about what it takes to run a government effectively and economically under the pressure of hard times. I had that very job for four years at Harrisburg.

Party to Honor Recent Bride

Miss Ruth Boyd was hostess Tuesday evening at the home of her aunt Mrs. O. F. Bettcher in honor of Mrs. Ernest Brisebell, Jr. After a delightful evening of games and cards supper was served at a table decorated in yellow, centered by a miniature bride.

Present were: Mesdames Melba Brisebill, Pearl Williams, F. W. Smith, Ernest Brisbill Sr., and Mrs. O. F. Bettcher. Misses Gertrude Jones, Margery Williams, Dorothy Thomas, Elizabeth Brisebill, Kay Greenway, Phyllis Williams. Also present were Ernest Brisebill, Jr., Ernest Brisebill, Sr., Elmer Spargo and O. F. Bettcher.

ERNEST COLE FUNERAL

The funeral of the late Ernest Cole will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Trinity Episcopal chuch, Nevada City.

MONEY FOR POLITICS

It can't be done on the Farley basis. The Farley basis means that your good money is going for politics instead of for service—that you are paying for politics that you don't want and for service that you don't get. And that makes a difference to you.

Under Franklin Roosevelt the government at Washington is a mess. Everybody knows it. Even Democrats admit it—but not for publication.

The business of the American people—your business—is to clean up that mess. For that will make a difference to you.

The way to do it is to replace the present Democratic mess and muddle with a clean cut and efficient Republican administration sincerely and effectively devoted to the greatest good of the greatest number, honestly pledged to the welfare of the plain people, and earnestly determined to make the public good come first.

Friends, let's get together and clean up the mess in Washington. For that will make a whale of a difference to you.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Surprise Shower For Mrs. Koskie

Mrs. Hattie Koskie, a bride of a few days, was delightfully surprised Tuesday evening when she was taken by her sister, Mrs. Harry Bolton and Mrs. Ted Sinnock to the Bolton home where a group of friends had gathered for a party in her honor.

Music and games were enjoyed, prizes were awarded to Mrs. Koski, first, and Miss Dorothy Collins of Grass Valley second.

A tiny toy wagon decorated in pink and green was brought into the midst of the group and proved to be a load of beautiful and useful gifts for Mrs. Koski. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening, dainty place cards and flowers in pastel shades were used in the decorations.

Guests of the evening were. Mrs. Hattie Koskie, Mrs. Frances Smith, Mrs. Thomas Oliver, Miss Alberta Bolton, Nevada City, Mrs. Ted Sinnock, Colfax; Mrs. Carol Elster, Mrs. Leonard Martin, Mrs. John Bertelsen, and Miss Dorothy Collins, Grass Valley and Mrs. Harry Bolton.

Gold Flat Quilting Club

Yesterday afternoon members of the Gold Flat Quilting Club enjoyed a delightful meeting at the home of Mrs. E. W. Penrose of Silva avenue. The home was decorated with a profusion of spring flowers. Snowdrops, blue winter iris, dark blue crocus, violets, large pansies and pink azalea, all from Mrs. Penrose's garden.

The afternoon was spent in quilting. Last week the meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Angeline Roberts and members made quilt blocks from an elephant pattern. A delicious luncheon was served at one o'clock.

First Grader Has Birthday Party

Little Joyce Jean Martin, who resides on Sugar Loaf with her parents, enjoyed a party Wednesday, the occasion being her sixth birthday. Many of her little classmates were present to spend several hours in playing games, and partake of dainty refreshments. She was the recipient of a number of pretty presents.

INDIAN MYTH OR NOT, THIS LAKE PROVED UNLUCKY

WASHINGTON, D. C. Feb. 27.—In the language of the Indian tribes that once dwelt in the wilderness along the Ohio, "incolala" was the term which stood for silver moonlight. It was also the name of the fairest maiden in all the region years before the white man came. But, because the name of Incolala become joined with that of the pioneer, James Snowden, it will find a place in the American Guide, the 5-volume travel handbook which the government will publish.

Back in the hills southwest of Pittsburgh, Pa., near the borough of Crafton, Cartiers Creek forms a small, picturesque lake which is known as Fall Hole. Snowden, the first white man to enter the territory was so taken with the beauty of the setting of Fall Hole that he announced his intention of settling beside it. Cornplanter, the chief of the Indians thereabouts, told him that he would be safer in locating somewhere else.

"This lake," the Indian explained, "is haunted by the spirit of Incolala."

Snowden was not superstitious, but he was curious enough to ask for the legend connected with the lake.

Incolala, the Indian replied, was the belle of the Ohio. When she was promised in marriage to a young warrior, Cocohuha, the news came with a shock to another suitor, Folcano. Until the evening before the wedding, Folcano brooded in his father's wigwam.

That evening, he found the girl alone and spoke to her of the happy times which they had had together and of his sorrow that they could no longer be companions.

Finally, he asked her as a parting favor to spend the last evening with him canoeing on the lake. Much moved, the girl consented.

Unseen, they slipped away from the campfire and made their way to the shore. The moon was bright and turned the water to silver, except where lay the black shadows of the trees. With swift strokes, Folcano drove the canoe toward the middle of the lake and spoke softly of other days. The sound of the camp died out in the distance and the glow of the campfire grew to a mere spark.

Suddenly, Folcano dropped his paddle and, leaping upon Incolala, seized her throat. She struggled to save herself from his mad attack and the canoe turned over. A few moments later, Folcano struck out for shore—alone. Incolala was dead.

"Now, each spring, when the moon is bright and love awakens in the hearts of maidens," concluded Cornplanter, "a strong, young warrior is seized by invisible hands and dragged under the waters of the lake. So Incolala's spirit has sought revenge."

Snowden assured the chief that he was ready to face the danger and built his cabin on the shore. Strangely enough, the following spring, his drowned body was found floating in the lake.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS TO HAVE DINNER DANCE

The young Democrats club of Grass Valley and Nevada City will hold their annual dinner dance at the Bret Harte Inn in Grass Valley Saturday night January 29th at 7 o'clock.

Present at the meeting will be A. L. Zirpoli of San Francisco who is president of the Young Democrats clubs of Northern California. Mr. Zirpoli is deputy U. S. District Attorney in the office of U. S. District Attorney McPike in San Francisco.

Dancing will begin after the dinner and cocktail hour. Three other clubs will be the guests of the local club, Yolo county, Sacramento county, and Yuba as well as members of other clubs.

There will be a short entertainment featuring local singers, and all arrangements presage a brilliant affair. All who are interested in the activities of the Young Democrats Clubs ars asked to make reservations for this fine social event.

NEW HOUSE IN PINE STREET

Contractor Lawrence Smith of this city is building a modern, small house on upper Pine street in the northern part of town. It is reported the house is to be rented. It will be a beautiful addition to that part of the city. An attractive fireplace built of varicolored stones and petrified wood is very attractive.

YELLOWJACKETS IN HARD BATTLE LOSE TO MINERS

(By BEN SWEENEY)

Grass Valley high school became county champions in both A and B divisions when they defeated the Nevada City Yellowjackets on the Miner court Wednesday evening. The score in the A game was 21 to 16, and the B contest ended 42 to 29. Neither of the A teams played smooth basketball, but the score in that contest was close enough to keep spectators guessing. It is understood that the official who refereed the games is an excellent football referee, but his decisions on the basketball court were ridiculous enough to necessitate a mid-first-quarter conference between the two coaches and himself. More booing was heard in the Wednesday night games than has been heard for many years in a hoop contest between the two cities.

Wilde, still weak from flu, didn't start but played a good game when he was put in later. Captain "Sun" Steger didn't see as much action as he might have, having had three fouls called on him early in the game. The locals trailed one point at the end of the first quarter, and the halftime score was 9 to 7 with Grass Valley still in front. The steady pulling away made the score 21 to 11 at the close of the third quarter.

Players and their points follow: Elliott, 5; Wilde, 4; Doolittle, 3; Steger, 2; Lopez, 2; Stevens, Santinellie.

The B contest was one of the typical inconsistent games that the local B squad has played all season. With a halftime score of 14 to 13, with the Miners only one point ahead, it looked as if the Yellowjackets might turn the tables, but the third quarter ended 28 to 21, and the last quarter was little short of a walkaway. Lack of substitutes for the locals no doubt effects their game.

Being unused to the slippery Grass Valley court, several of the locals took bad spills in the early part of the game. Gates was not even on the bench, his basketball playing for this season perhaps all through. The playing of Schiffner should certainly be commended, not merely because he turned in the most points, but because of his fast floor work.

Players and points follow: Schiffner, 13; Bennett, 8; Organ, 5; Mullis, 3; Brown, Bonner.

HILLS FLAT NOW HAS A MODERN NIGHT CLUB

Jack Rose who has been actively engaged in managing cabartes in the east has opened a new supper club at Hills Flat, Grass Valley, and from the text of the ad appearing in another page his place should be popular. The young lady who does the fan dance is direct from the streets of Paris at the Chicago Worlds Fair and is reported to have been arrested more times than Sally Rand. Mr. Rose also employs many other singers and dancers of reputation.

GEORGE SCHRADER IS NEW SCOUT LEADER

George Schrader of the National Forest Service has accepted the post of Scout Leader for Nevada City's troop. Frank Wright who has faithfully served in the post for over a year sometime since expressed a wish to retire owing to the accumulation of duties in the city's service and Mr. Schrader consented to take the leadership. There are over thirty members of the Nevada City scout troop and the Scout Council hopes this summer to erect a log hut for the boys in Pioneers park. The building committee of which Judge Raglan Tuttle is chairman will consider the plans for building in a short time. Logs for the hall were cut last year and are now at the Argogast sawmill.

FRENCH CORRAL GRAVEL MINE

Superintendent Hector Declue has six men employed at the French Corral gravel mine at French Corral. Gravel is being handled by dragline and trommel to extract the gold. The company is figuring on installing a larger plant in the spring. Capitalists of the bay district have an option on the property.

EMPLOYMENT OFFICE IN DRIVE TO FIND JOBS

Problems of finding jobs for unemployed workers of California through increased use by employers of the facilities of the state-wide California State Employment Service will be discussed by officials of the organization in San Francisco Saturday, at one of the most important meetings of its kind ever held in this state.

This is the word received here today from Roy S. Stockton, State Director of the California State Employment Service, which has nationwide affiliations with the United States Employment Service, of the U. S. Department of Labor.

Managers of 16 offices of the state service will be in attendance at the conference, scheduled to start at 9 a. m. at the William Taylor hotel.

In calling his organization together, Stockton said 1936 will be one of outstanding accomplishment by the state employment service because of increased scope of activity, improved business conditions and a greater need for regulation of the job and labor markets. "We look forward to doubling our 1935 job placement total during the present year," he said.

EPWORTH LEAGUE GROUPS WILL COMBINE WEDNESDAY

Members of the high school chapter of the Grass Valley Epworth League will have charge of the Epworth League service in Nevada City Sunday evening at 6 p. m. The combined league groups will remain through church services, which will include the showing of motion pictures on missionary work in Hawaii, and will be entertained at a fellowship meeting following the service.

All who are interested in this youth service are cordially invited to attend.

FHA WILL ISSUE CERTIFICATES OF LOAN APPROVAL

A "Certificate of Approval" now is being issued for each government-inspected house eligible for insured single mortgage financing under the Federal Housing Administration plan, it was announced by Clifford C. Anglim, director for the Northern California district.

"These certificates are the government's guarantee to purchasers that the house of their choice has passed all the exacting regulations required for lasting construction and has been approved after rigid government inspections," Anglim declared. "In brief, it means that the house represents full value for each dollar invested.

"Facts on which a Certificate of Acceptance is based include location, insuring that it is one in which values are not deteriorating; plans and specifications are carefully reviewed by an architectural staff; materials are required to meet certain standards, and construction must conform to specifications and the best building practices. There can be no short-cuts and no substituting of materials. This is assured by frequent inspections from the time foundations are laid until the residence is ready for occupancy.

"Despite building regulations and rigorous inspections, no complicated procedure or delays are encountered in securing an insured single mortgage. A smooth working organization has ben perfected by the Housing Administration and with the cooperation of lending agencies, time required to secure a commitment has been cut to a minimum."

Anglim also called attention to the fact that insured single mortgages save purchasers the cost and annoyance of ever refinancing, because they do not mature until final monthly payments are made. There is no secondary financing, so once the monthly instalments are met there is nothing more to pay and at the end of the time stated in the mortgage the purchaser is presented with a deed to his home, free and clear of all indebtedness.

He predicted no less than 10,000 certificates of approval will be issued in Northern California during 1936, with practically every community in the district actively engaged on the most ambitious home building program in recent years.

DEPOT HILL MINE

Mr. Fred Joubert, mining man of Camptonville, has five men employed in handling several hundred yards of gravel per day with one monitor, at the Depot Hill mine. With the heaviest snow pack and rainfall in many years a splendid season is in prospect for this property which stores its tailings behind Bullards Bar debris dam.

YELLOWJACKETS TO PLAY GRANT UNION HIGH

Friday night at Fireman's Hall, the Yellowjacket A and B squads will engage the casaba tossers of Grant Union high in basketball, the B game to begin at 7:30. This is the first game with Grant this season, and the locals have a task on their hands as the Grant boys are high in the field of winning scores to date.

Probable A team starters will be: Elliott, Wilde, Lopez, Steger and Stevens. The presence of Stevens back in the game after illness gives added strength to the locals.

B division beginners will include Bennett, Brown, Mullis, Organ and Schiffner. Gates will hold down a berth on the subs due to various reasons, although his presence in the first string was usually bad for opponents.

The date of a return game with the Grant outfits is yet to be deermined.

CLASS OF '36 TO GIVE A LEAP YEAR DANCE

Only once in the four years of high school does Leap Year occur for every student, and the Class of 1936 is taking advantage of this year's occurence by sponsoring a dance expressly for the high school students of Nevada City. Replete with Leap Year customs, the dance, to be given tomorrow evening, February 29, at the high school auditorium, will be run on the basis of girls inviting boys, and in some cases, girls leading the boys during the course of the dancing. The results of such a turn-about in customary practices should result in an unusually good time for all present.

The auditorium will be decorated in blue and white streamers, Gertrude Schreiber having charge of this phase of the program. Pop, sandwiches, and cake will be served, a special intermission being allowed for a rest and refreshments shortly before eleven o'clock. Katherine Glennon has been made chairman of the food committee, Peter Orzalli holding down the position of sales chief in both the food and ticket line. Bill Polkinghorn is president of the class, and Oscar Odegaard, Jr., general chairman, will see that all present are entertained royally during the period of more than three hours of dancing.

Miss Tremaine, advisor of the senior class, has been very active with the various committees in preparing for this occasion. Le Duc's Collegians will furnish the melody for the dance, the doors to be opened at 8:30.

OLD DOCUMENT CONFIRMS STORY OF BIG DROUGHT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Science has verified the "terrible drought" in the year 1800, reported in an old Spanish record of the Arizona Historical Society, which has just been translated by workers of the WPA Federal Writers' Projects. Miss Ina S. Cassidy, the state director, who has made several finds of scientific or historical value in the old records sent a copy of this record to Dr. E. A. Douglass, University of Arizona, who has been making a scientific study of tree rings. In reply, W. S. Stallings, Jr., who has charge of the ring research work under Professor Douglass, responded:

"For some time, I have been collecting such casual historical references to past weather as have come to my attention, and this reference is indeed a welcome addition. You may be interested to know that the ring for 1800 is characteristically small in the Rio Grande region and that the ring for the following year was even smaller."

Arizona was part of the territory which the United States took over from Mexico after the war with that country and English records did not begin until the middle of the last century. The drought was told about in a report made by Don Pedro de Nava, in rendering an account of a campaign which he conducted against the Navajo Indians. He wrote:

"I directed my search with 300 men to San Mateo (supposed to be the same place now known by the name, lying between Albuguerque and Gallup and also known as Mount Taylor), whose range of mountains I finally inspected and, only finding old tracks of the enemy, I realized that they had moved their encampment from this advantageous locality for lack of water; as I found some known springs with little water and others entirely dry on account of the terrible drought which is being experienced. Because of this, I descended to El Rio del Norte and then joined the retinue."

Another translation solves the mystery of the "stone watch towers" which are scattered over eastern and north-western Arizona. Writing on November 22, 1788, Don Jacobo Ugarte Y Loyola reported that the Spaniards were on an excellent footing with the Navajos with the prospect of permanent peace and adds that Antonio el Pinto, the Navajo chief, had built ten rock towers in his tribe's encampments to safeguard the women and children in the continuous raids of the Gilenos. Loyola proposed that the chief be given command of the Navajo nation with the title of general.

The state and local Historical Records Survey now being initiated by the Federal Writers' Projects will make inventories of old documents in every state and will make available to the public such portions of them as seem particularly interesting or are of outstanding scientific or historical importance.

THE MELODY SINGERS AT THEATRE SATURDAY

Josephine Hutchinson, last seen in "Oil for the Lamps of China" and George Houston, handsome new opera star screen "find", have the leading roles in "The Melody Lingers On," Edward Small's stirring romantic drama with music for Reliance Pictures, which comes to the Nevada Theatre Saturday night.

Based on the novel by Lowell Brentana, "The Melody Lingers On" mirrors the heart of a woman who discovered that the world's applause could not compensate for the loss of the man she loved and the love of the son she could never claim.

Miss Hutchinson is seen as Ann Prescott, a carefree, young American girl studying music abroad during the world war, and Houston plays Salvini, famous opera singer on leave from the front with whom she has a romance. Faced with the prospect of placing her baby in an alien cantonment, she leaves him in a convent.

The war over, she learns that Salvini has been killed in action and enters the convent in the hope of seeing her son. Unknown to her he is adopted by a wealthy family.

The years bring honor and fame to Ann, but nothing can fulfill her yearning for the man she loves and the child she cannot claim. But life repays her for all her suffering on the day when she thrills to her son's sesational operatic debut at the La Scala, singing the song his father sang on the same stage the day she fell in love with him.

Ralph Block and Phillip Dunne wrote the screen play and dialogue.

The imposing supporting cast of "The Melody Lingers On" is headed by John Halliday, Mona Barrie, Helen Westley, Laura Hope Crews, William Harrigan, David Scott, Walter Kingsford and Ferdinand Gottschalk.

Houston is heard singing the Toreador song from "Carmen" and "Ritorno di Sorriento", famous Italian folk song in this Marry M. Goetz presentation which David Burton directed for release through United Artists.

Mrs. Mary Curnow, mother of Mr. Horace Curnow, who has been quite ill with flu is showing improvement from a severe relapse of her illness.

SAN JUAN MINE

Superintendent Ray Butterfield has 19 men employed at the San Juan mine north of San Juan with a payroll of over $2,000 per month. A winze is being sunk on the 400 foot level in the mine and a shaft is going down on Yuba Flat on the property some distance from the present mine. A pump has been installed to handle water in the new 70 foot shaft. Trucks started hauling ore to Nevada City for shipment yesterday for the first time in several weeks. Over 100 tons of ore per day is being brought to Nevada City for shipment via narrow gauge to Seattle, Washington. It is reported the Bradley interests, who own the big property, are planning to install a mill on the property before long.

Thru the Knot Hole
A Glimpse of Building Activity

VOL. 1. FEBRUARY 28, 1936. No. 39

The most used room in the modern home and the most important room for the house keeper is the kitchen.

Present day architects and specialists in kitchen planning have made wonderful improvements over the old style kitchens. The modern kitchen is a real work shop for the home maker with convenient cup boards, drawers, bread boards, sinks —etc. planned with the idea of saving steps and labor.

Our connection with the manufacturers of Peerless-Built-in fixtures makes it possible for us to have a sketch made for you showing just what your kitchen will look like after it is brought up to the minute with these excellent fixtures. The exact cost can also be determined before work is done.

Let us show you what can be accomplished in remodeling your old dark, inconvenient kitchen into a modern work shop for the home maker. We will be glad to show you sketches of actual installations.

THE MODERN TEMPO

"Sire", said the Grand Visier of an oriental potentate, "I suggest that in the future we buy our automobiles from the western company that has just offered us a 30 per cent discount."

"Good" said the potentate. Order a consignment of 500 automobiles, assorted sizes, at once, and tell the company to send us a check for the discount by return mail and the bill will be settled in due course."
